Description:

About the Author Steven Luna was relatively quiet when he was born, but that all changed once he learned to speak. Now? Good luck getting him to shut up. He's a lover of words, some of his favorites being "askew", "rhinoceros", and "plexiglas". He's written for children before, and now he's writing for adults. Someday he may write for the womb-bound or the elderly, but he'll need a little more convincing before he pulls the ripcord on that parachute. For now, he's hard at work on his next big novel...but it probably won't feature the word "plexiglas". "Askew" and "rhinoceros", however, are still on the table.
